Push ads

Push notifications ads is an emerging and competitive ad format. Imitating a personal alert on mobile or desktop, it catches new audiences and reaches the highest CTR among other ad types.

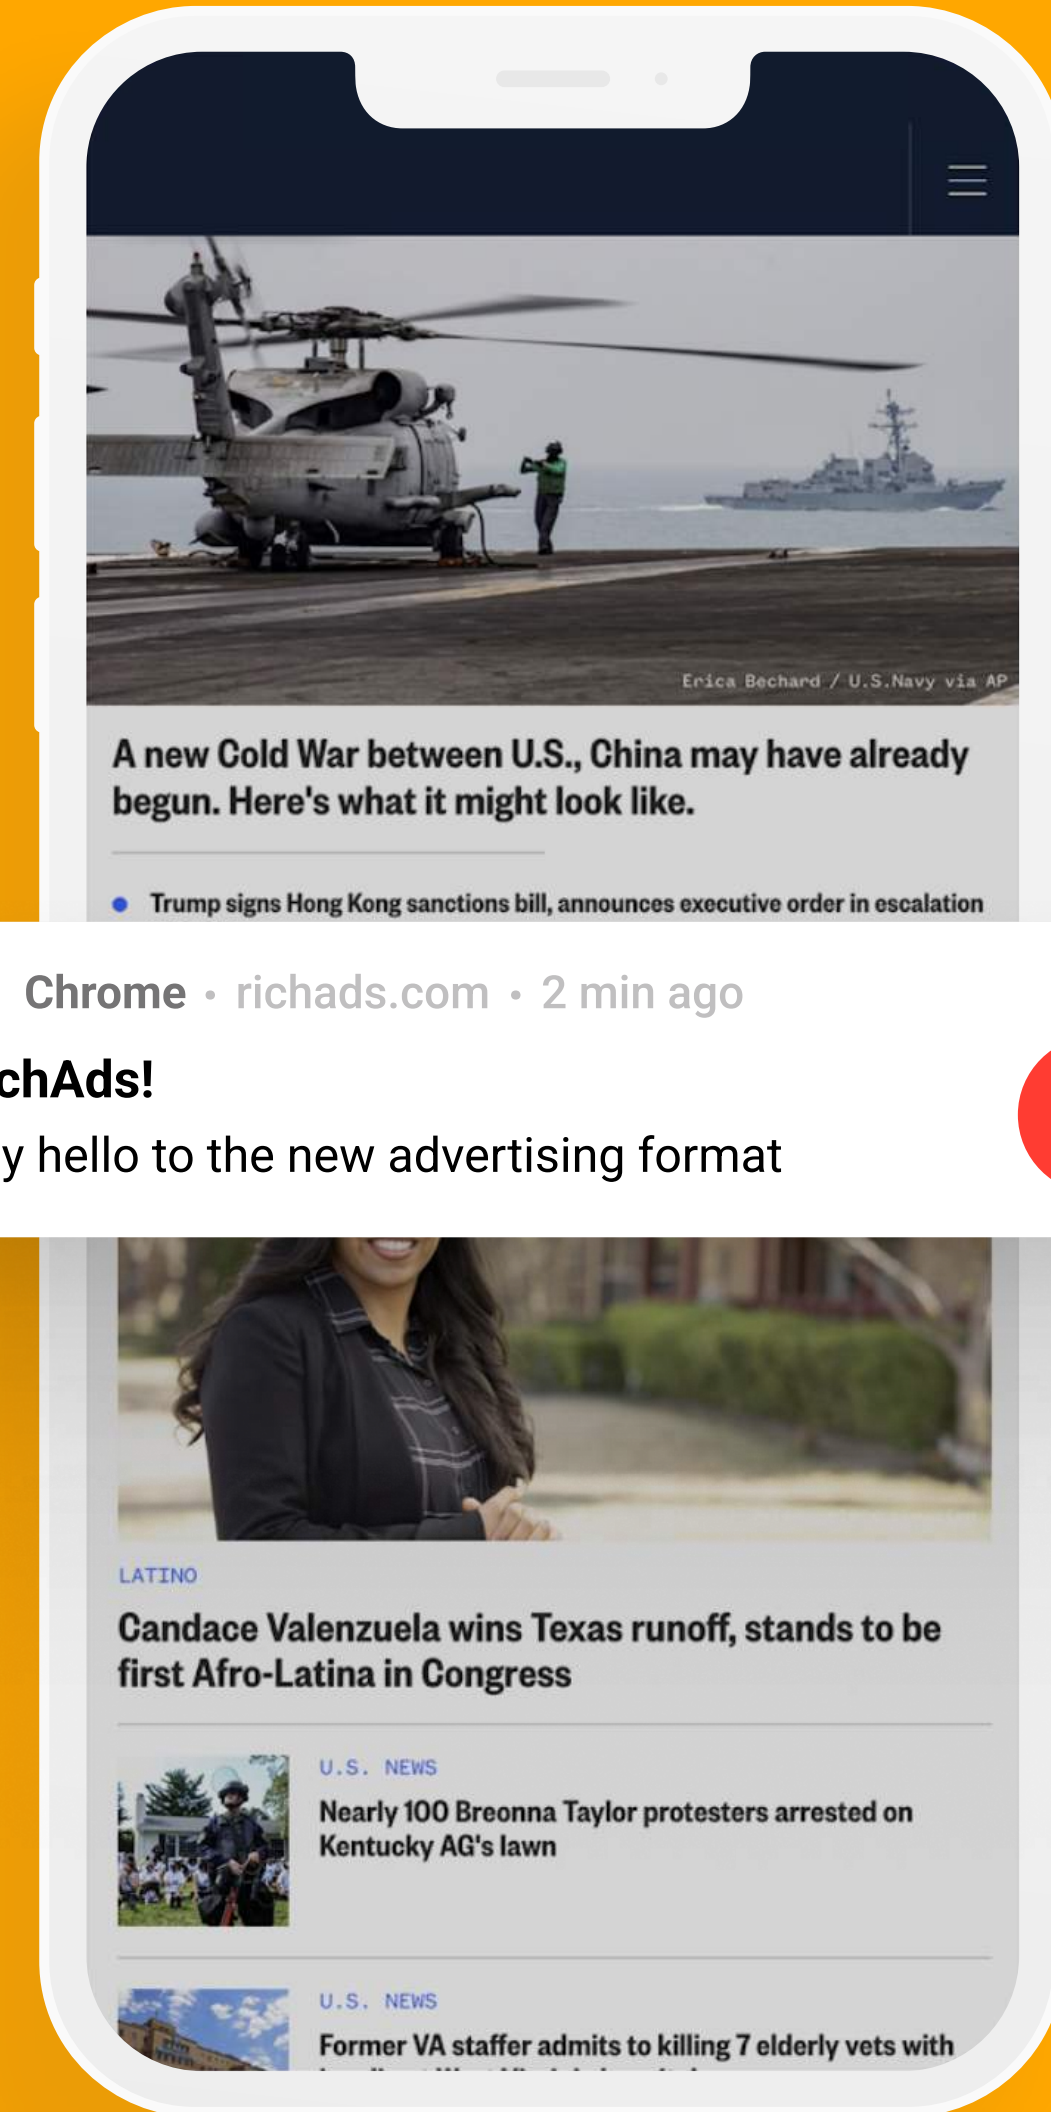

Push ads

What types of Push ads can you run?

- Web push ads
- In-page push ads
- Calendar push ads

Web push ads

Web push notifications look like private messages that appear over other windows. They are sent via browser technologies to users who have agreed to receive them.

100% Visibility

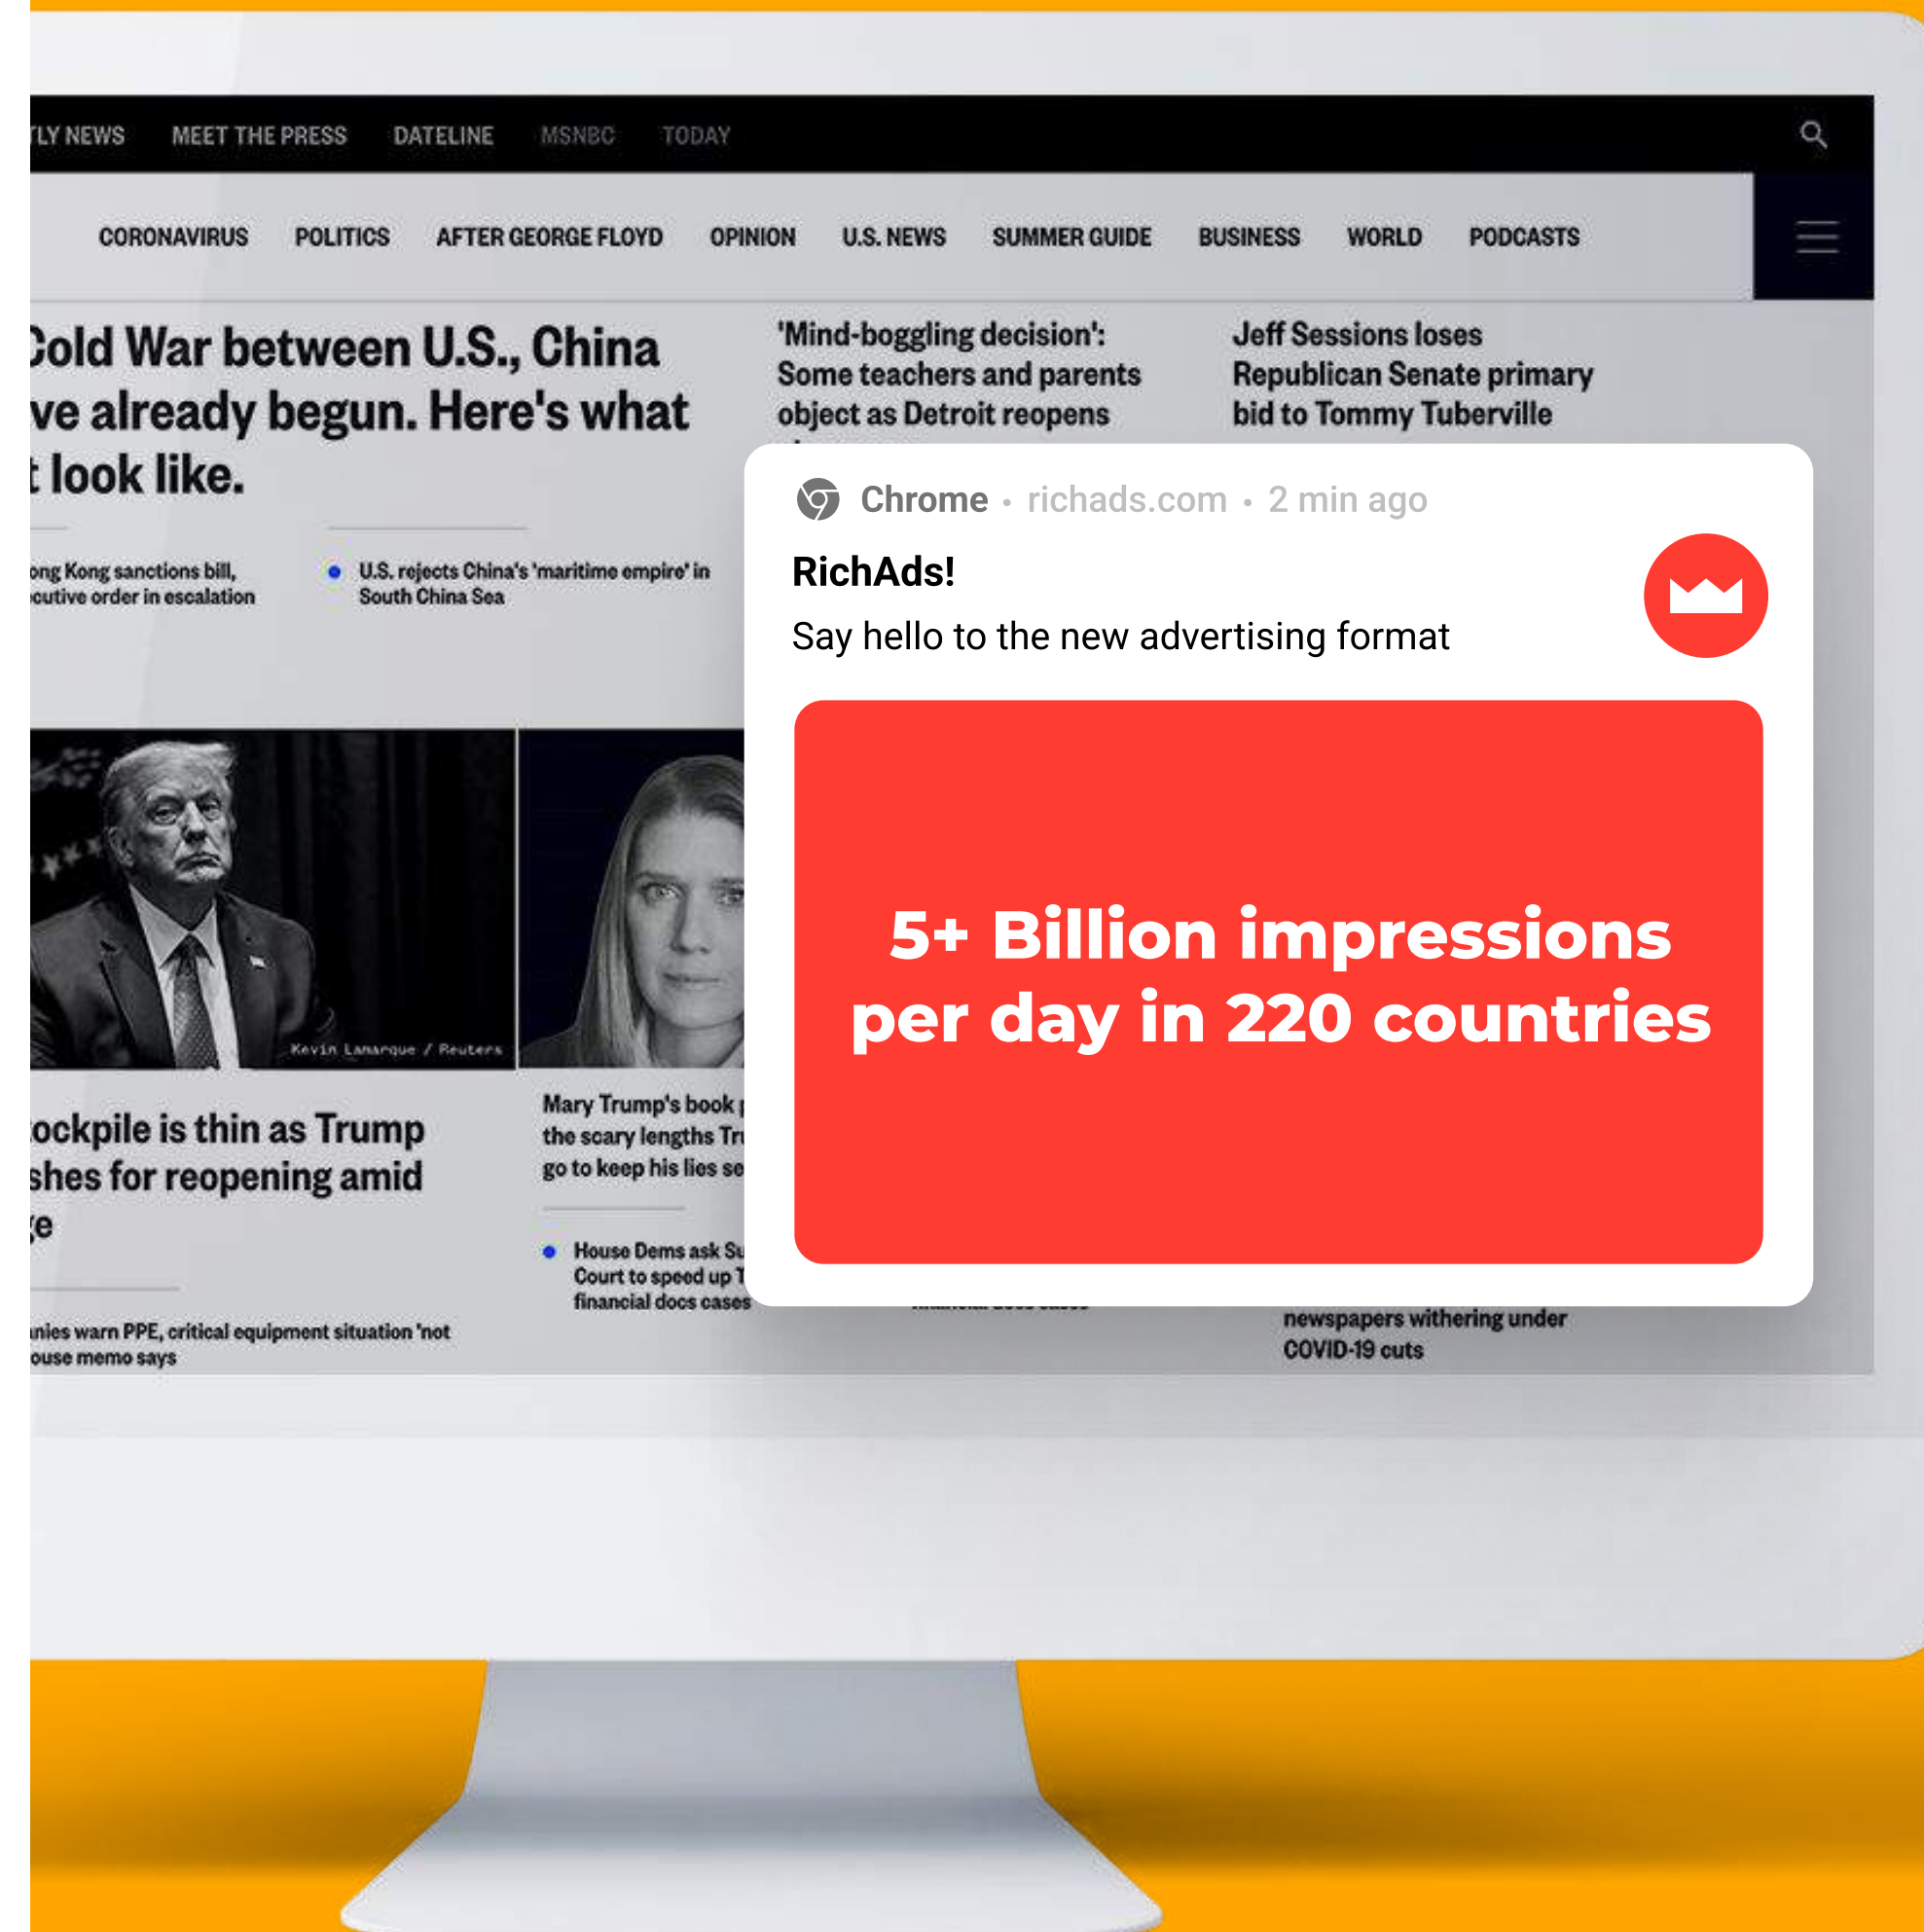

Push ads are not prone to banner blindness.

CPC from $0.003

Pay only when a user clicks your ads.

Highest ROI

Due to combination of traffic quality, huge volumes, and reasonable price.

Calendar push

It appears in the iOS and macOS Calendar app in the form of a scheduled event.

High-quality push traffic from iOS devices

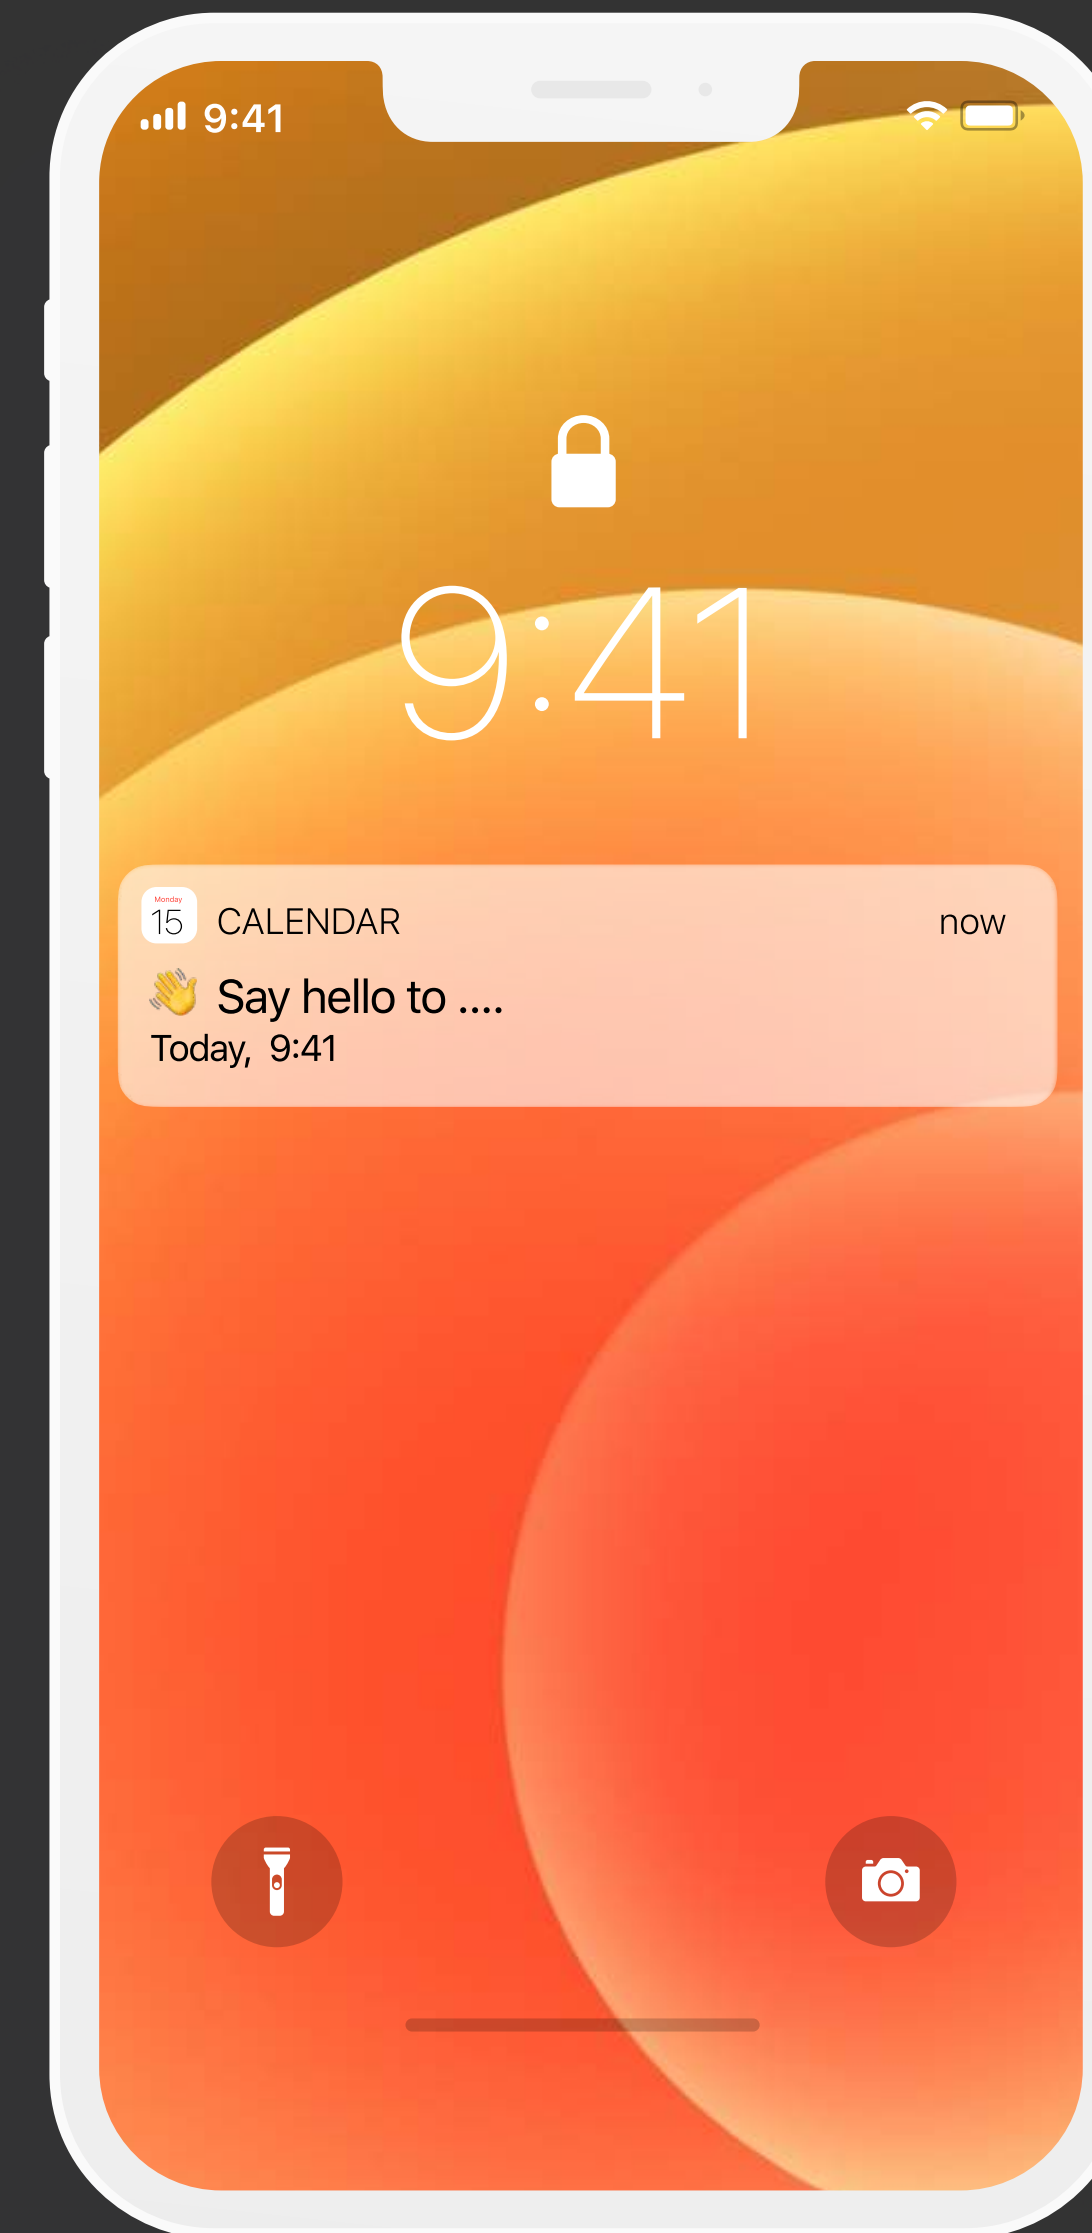

Typically, this audience has higher income, so affiliate marketer holds a lot of interest for them.

Higher CR

Calendar push ads have a much more fresh audience and show higher CR.

No images needed

Elementary launching, testing, and optimization process.

In-page push

In-page push appears on a publisher's page.
No subscription is required.

Available for iOS audience

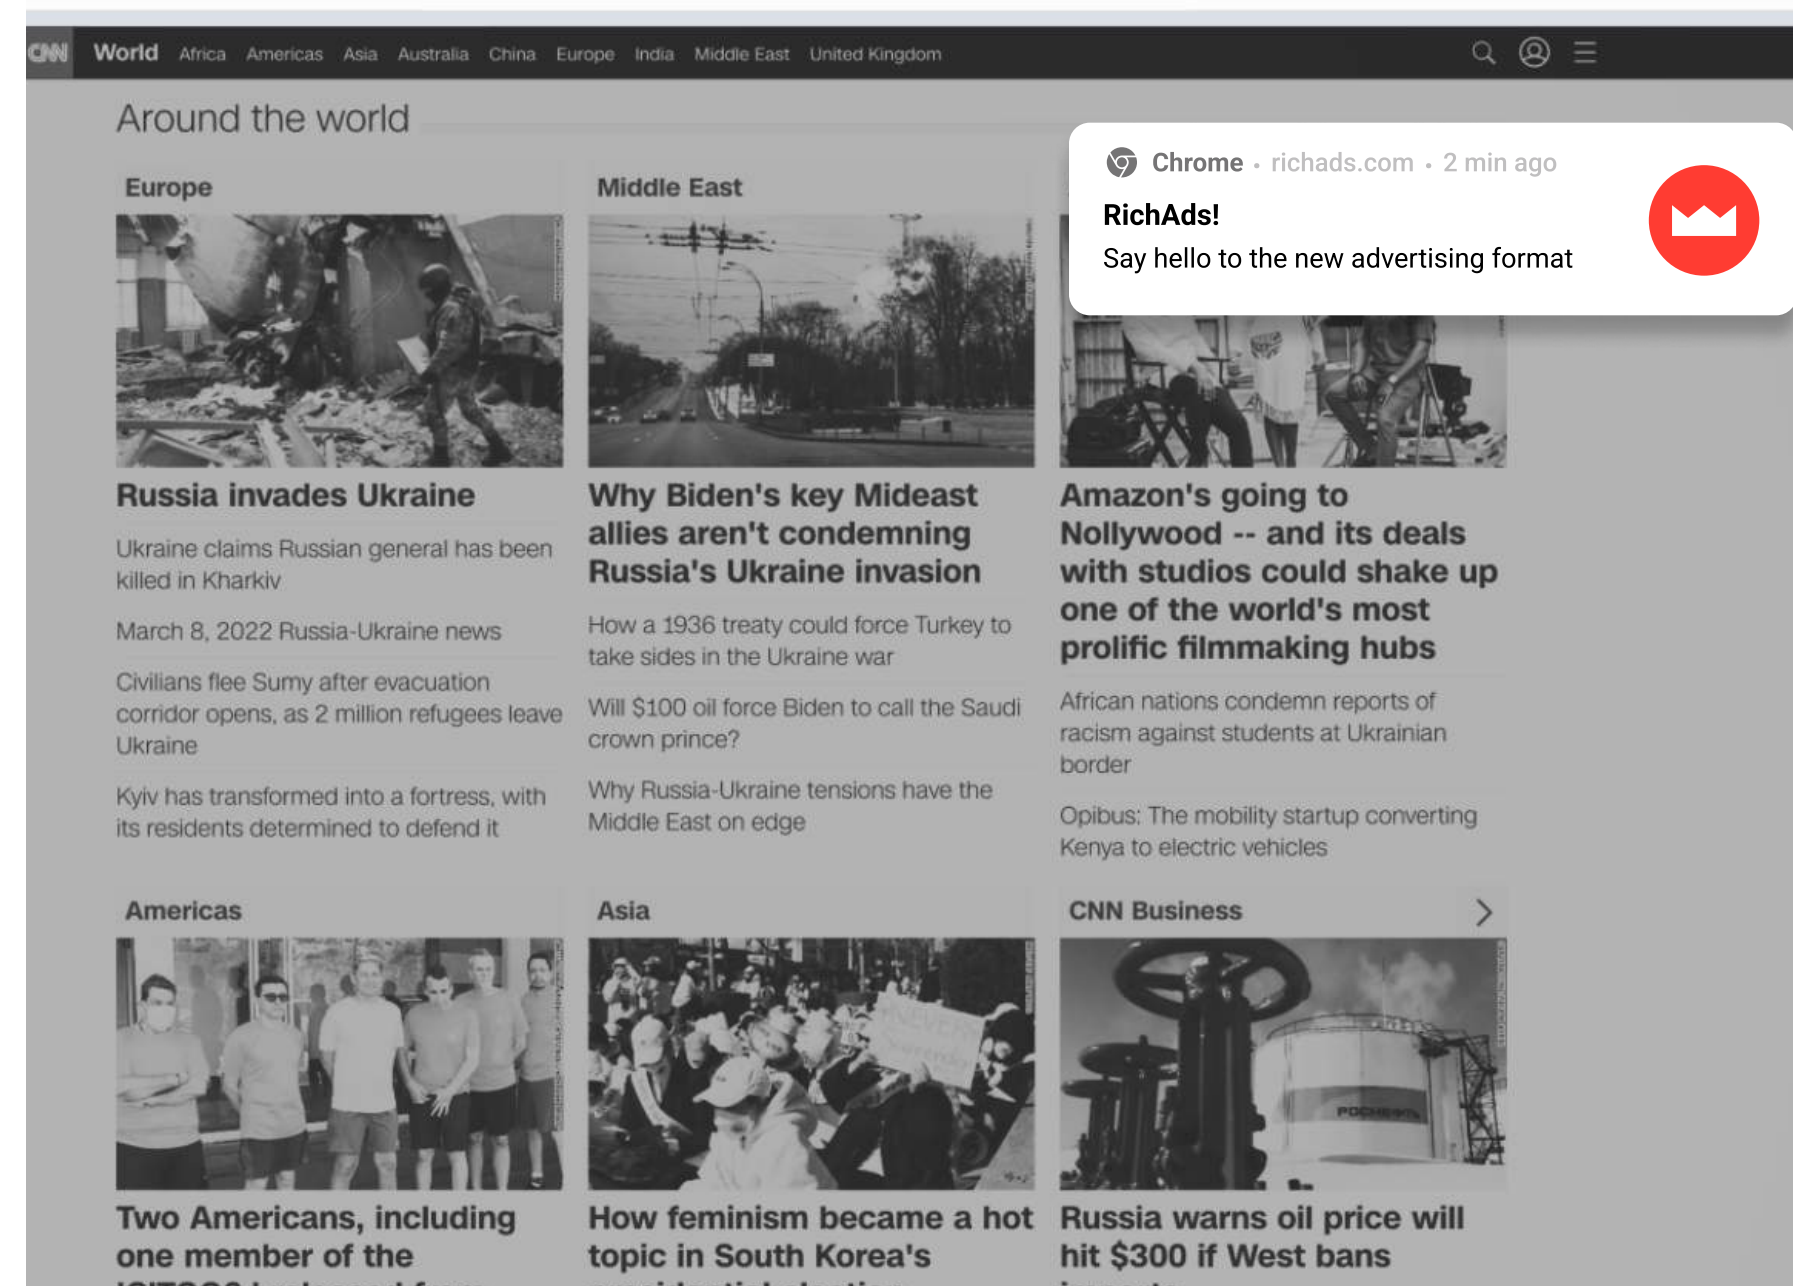

iOS users were still unfamiliar with the push format. In-page push made it possible to reach them.

Noticeable but not intrusive

They are visible, but do not interfere with the user's experience.

Not affected by browser updates

Due to combination of traffic quality, huge volumes, and reasonable price.

Pop ads

Popunder is the cheapest and easiest format to start with. Ads appear as a new tab under the previously visited page with no interruption of the the user experience.

Pop ads

Easy to launch

To attract users you don't have to use creatives but a converting landing page only.

Lowest bid price

Cheaper than Facebook, Instagram, or paid search ads.

Widest audience outreach

Pops adapt for any device and work well on broad entertaining websites with a huge number of users.

POPUNDER

Direct click

Direct click is a type of traffic that offers a user's redirect from a "parked" domain to the landing page of the advertiser's offer. This is the only ad format where users look at the screen to see ads.

Direct click

“Warmed up” audience

Users purposefully look at the screen to see ads.

Users are not disrupted by ads

Ads do not interrupt the user’s activity and do not distract them. The ad network makes transitions seamless and instant.

10 times higher CR

CR for domain campaigns is 10 times higher than for pops.

Native ads

Native advertising is basically the ads that are integrated as organically as possible into the content of the site where they're displayed. They do not stand out on the web page and don't disturb a potential client.

Native ads

No banner blindness

Our offer will be as close as possible to the content of the site where the advertisement will be displayed.

No AdBlock restrictions

Native format is less obvious and annoying, which means that AdBlock software bans such ads less often.

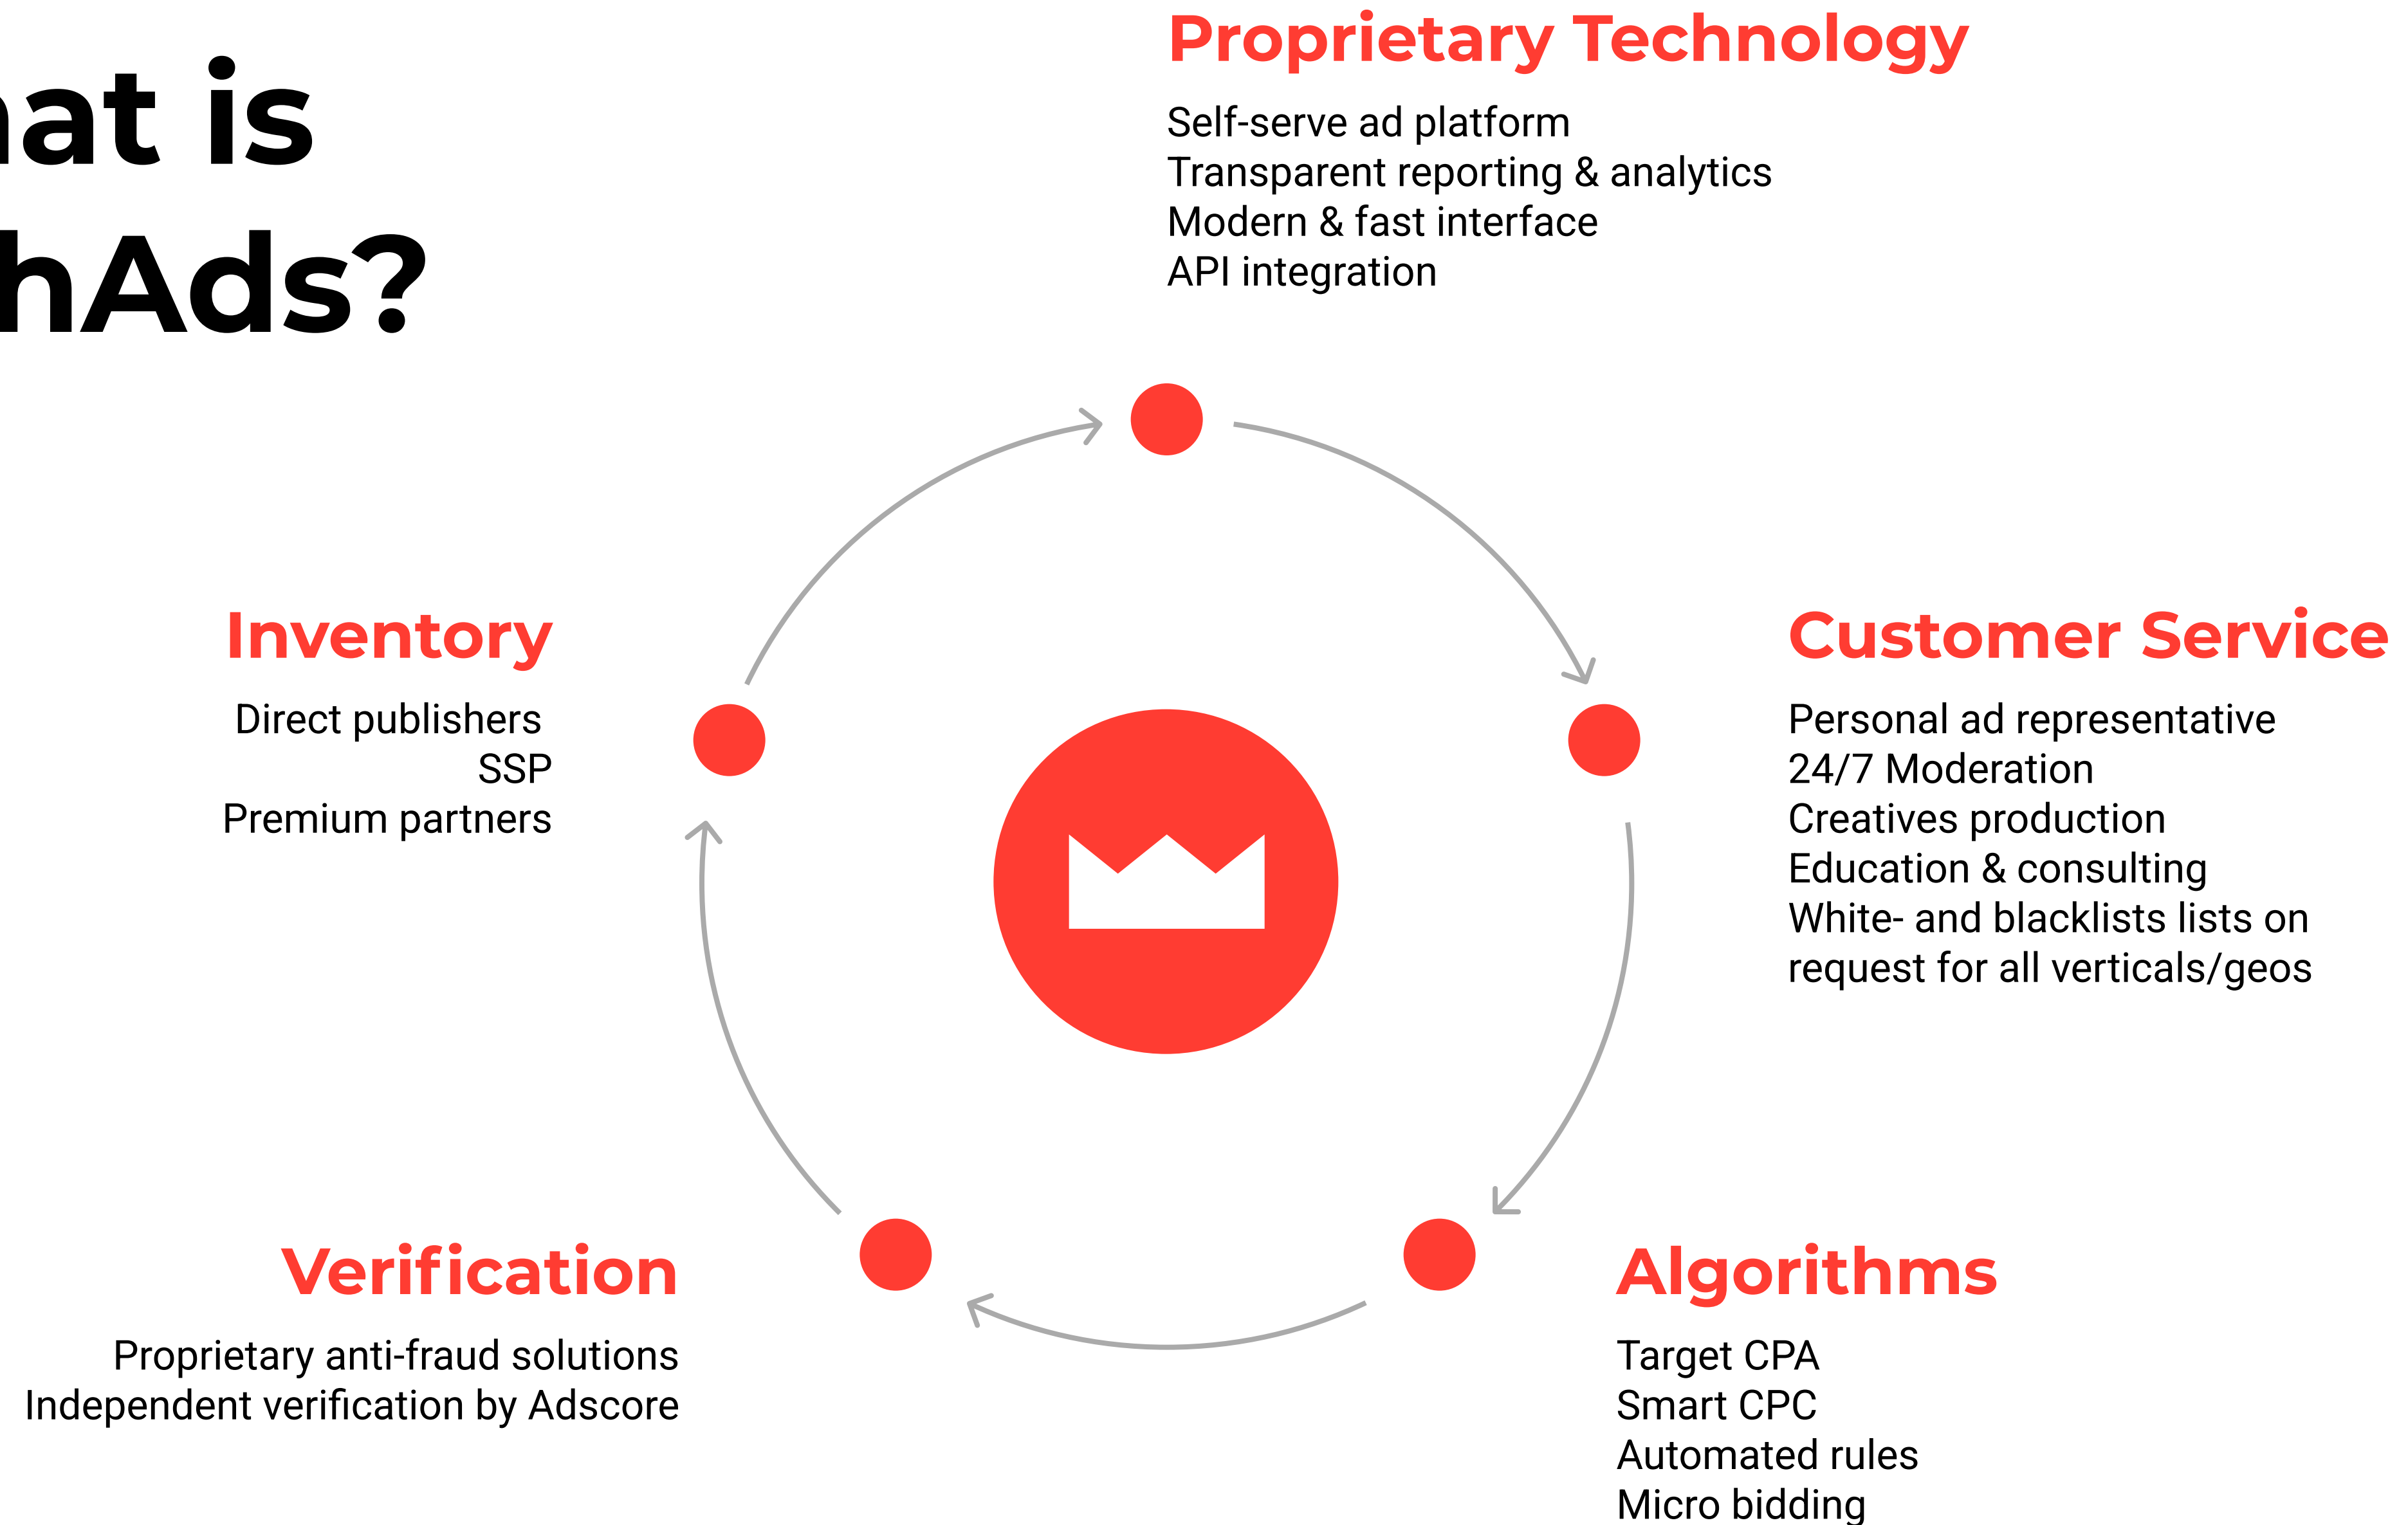

Makes your brand more recognizable

When placing an ad on a site with trustworthy information, for example, any news site, your offer is perceived more loyally by the audience and is associated with the positive image of the website.
